Research

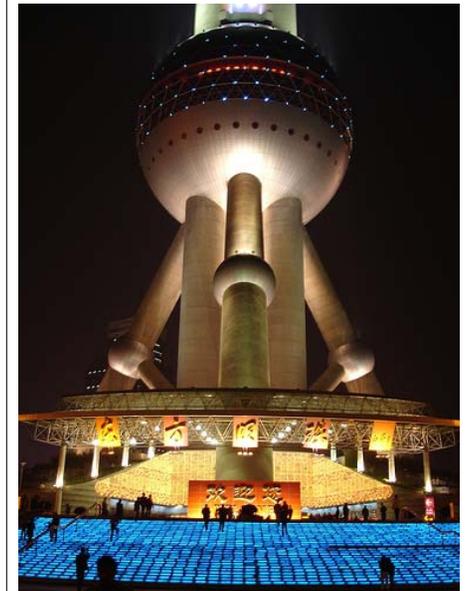

Fact-finding group visits, sponsored by corporations, can help The Eurasia Center better understand the unique economic, political, and social climate of China, explain its past successes and setbacks, and assess its future progress and needs. The Eurasia Center, multi-national corporations, non-governmental organizations (NGOs), the academic community, the political arena, and China itself can all gain valuable insight from these important activities.

The Eurasia Center's Program on China

Lecture Series, Roundtables, and Symposia

The Eurasia Center has a reputation for its thought-provoking lecture series and roundtable discussions that focus on issues relating to modern China. Our topics have included, security, sustainable economic development, trade, foreign direct investment, social capital, human development, population growth, the effects of China's foreign policies, the environment, its relationship with the West and the increasing importance of China as a political and economic force. These events foster a greater understanding of China as a leading player in world affairs, especially given the current situation involving the world economic crisis.

Cultural Events

The Eurasia Center is involved in a wide range of cultural activities. The Center has hosted students and professionals from China and the West to benefit cultural exchange. The Eurasia Center's efforts in the cultural arena help establish stronger ties between the people of China and the United States, which will lead to economic growth, clear international dialogue, and wide-ranging cultural exchange.

Trade and Business

The Eurasia Center conducts economic research on US-China trade. The Eurasian Business Coalition is actively involved in facilitating the promotion of business development between the United States and China. It offers tax services and info on potential joint venture partnerships. Please visit www.eurasianbusiness.org

Internships

The Eurasia Center plans to engage the U.S. and the Chinese Government, leading corporations, and foundations with an interest in Asia to sponsor our internship program. Targeted at highly-qualified interns from China and the United States, our Program has provided the opportunity for Chinese interns to research and study developments in U.S.-Chinese relations from the geographic heart of U.S. foreign policy. The Eurasia Center Internship Program encourages communication with and between U.S. and Chinese organizations in the hope that it will both lay the foundation for better international cooperation and train the younger generation to have a broader understanding of international relations and cooperation.
